TV weatherman Owen Martin is relieved to leave Southern California—the monotonously mild climate and the holistically hip trends—and head home to Iowa, back to the four seasons and the simple life he knew before his father died. But he can't predict the atmospheric pressure awaiting him: The town his family founded has become the center of the Transcendental Meditation movement and host to all things alternative. There are mass meditations and dosha discussions, a vegan cafe has replaced the burger joint, and all the doors now face east. Far worse, however, is what the meditating mayor has planned for the Martin family's farm.

In a town divided between “Regulars” and “Roos” (gurus), Owen is sure where he stands—until he falls for a levitating yogi. Before he knows it, he's caught in a veritable tornado of midwesternness vs. mindfulness. Can he save the farm, get the girl, and reunite the town? Maybe . . . if he's willing to forecast a change in the weather.

Stella Neal:

As a student exactly feel bored to be able to reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library as well as to make summary for some guide, they are complained. Just minor students that has reading's heart or real their pastime. They just do what the educator want, like asked to go to the library. They go to at this time there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that reading through is not important, boring along with can't see colorful pictures on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this time, many ways to get whatever we would like. Likewise word says, many ways to reach Chinese's country. So , this Rooville: A Novel can make you sense more interested to read.
